

This is an after action report on the Danville Eastern Regional Battleday November 2005

The Battleday was scheduled for November 18th, 19th, & 20th (Friday, Saturday, & Sunday).

The event officially kicked off on Friday. On Friday a number of Axis versus Allied Battles were held. Also some experimental battles were conducted.

Saturday had additional structured Battles along Axis verses Allied lines including some specific mission battles and the historical competition battles.

Sunday had additional battles along Axis verses Allied lines.

A very good time was had by all.

The following clubs had members in attendance;

AGE
BAD
East PAC
HEAT

Historical Platoon/Team Competition Battles;

Allied: Red Devils
Allied: Vagabonds
Axis: Das Reich

Round 1.

Allied: Red Devils versus Axis: Das Reich victor: Red Devils

Round 2.

Allied: Red Devils versus Allied: Vagabonds victor: Red Devils

Red Devils & Allied forces were the winner of the Historical Platoon/Team Competition Battles.

Note: this is the second time that Red Devils have won the Historical Platoon/Team Competition Battles.
Congratulations – Red Devils!

A Grand Competition Battle was held (all field able Allied & Axis forces).

The Axis forces exacted their revenge and won the Grand Battle Royal Competition Battle.

Notable events;

After accumulating sufficient victories and kills, Dana Lowell (member of Red Devils) was presented with a Bronze Star for his victories. With the latest victories by Red Devils, more awards are sure to come.

The 88mm artillery gun describe in earlier posts was at the event and was test fired during some battles.

I wish to thank all the participants of the Battleday for their patience and cooperation with the cameraman from the History channel video taping the event plus all of those that volunteered to be Referees, Judges, Event Organizers and Monitors.
